Muscle cars, cross country rallying and epic driving adventures. If you think a coast to coast drive, fuelled by a $1 million prize fund and legendary parties are the domain of the male of the species, The Great American Run is about to prove you wrong.

In an entry quota of 200, Ashley and Aimee Perlinger are the sole female entrants for the rally against time which begins along the east coast of America this July. Promising white hot action from start line to chequered flag, The Great American Run breezes through destinations including New Orleans, Indianapolis, San Antonio and Las Vegas.

Petrol heads and driving aficionados, hardcore racing fans and first time rally racers – all will spin their wheels in an attempt to travel the 3000 mile route in the time closest to that set by the event

Entrants can choose to start from the sunshine state of Miami, FL or take in the hustle and bustle of New York City, NY.

Perlingers may be newcomers to the sport, but they're not phased by the thought of taking on 399 men. "The competition factor is key and I believe we have that in the bag!", says Ashley. "As the male teams are wearing their gear, they will be distracted by the sight of the girls... And if they are wearing their gear, well then we are sure to have an advantage. We are both extremely competitive by design – so experienced drivers, watch out!"

All entrants competing for a limited number of titles in Saleen Ultimate Bad Boy, Mustang, title honours and automatic prize money into next years one million dollar event, the Great American Run is about enthusiasm and spirit. As veteran Cannonball Run host and The Great American Run organiser, Tim Porter says, "It doesn't matter what you drive, a Porsche or Lincoln, Ferrari or Ford, Mini or Maybach – it's not the metal that counts but the spirit you bring with it."

The all-girl squad will be traversing the route in style. Their Bentley GT sports car with 552 horsepower and racing prepared by Matt Crandall at GranPrix Imports, Oregon. As well as the usual assortment of navigation and radar detection systems, the girls are planning a full aural assault with driving tunes selected specifically for the adventure. "We've spent time over the last year or so cruising around together but we haven't had the chance to take part in any test sessions," says Aimee. "We figure if we're going to be driving a car going across country, we should do it in style and do it in a Bentley."

King of style, sibling rivalry has been put aside when it comes to agreeing on the best leg of the six
